

EM Acoustics R5

Following an extremely successful year, EM Acoustics is having a predictably busy start to 2024 as the team returns to ISE later this month. After a successful UK launch at PLASA in London, EM Acoustics will unveil the latest addition to its Reference series, the ultra-compact R5, to an international audience for the first time at the event, which runs from January 30th – February 2nd at the Fira Barcelona.

The Reference Series is characterised by its low-profile design and exceptional quality, offering full-range point source loudspeakers that boast remarkably flat frequency and phase responses. The series, which was an instant success in installations and live events alike, represents a flagship product line for the brand.

“Introducing a smaller enclosure is a logical step in the evolution of the Reference Series, driven by huge demand from our customers,” confirms Greg Clarke, EM Acoustics’ Brand Manager. “Like the rest of the Reference family, the R5 delivers high-calibre point-source audio, unparalleled headroom and exquisite musicality, and we can’t wait to share it with an international audience at ISE 2024.”

At the booth, the EM Acoustics management team will be on hand to showcase the full Reference Series range of precision passive full-range loudspeakers including the new R5, alongside a small selection of its popular EMS Series loudspeakers. The new addition joins a portfolio of EM Acoustics' loudspeakers that have already left an impression in various industry settings, including West End theatres, live music venues, touring events, fixed installations and festival stages, including Glastonbury’s Acoustic Stage.

Visitors attending the show can meet the EM Acoustics management team at booth 7H550 to learn more about the latest addition to the Reference Series and explore the brand’s full portfolio of audio solutions.
