PULSE XL speakers feature long voice coils for a deeper bass sound and greater clarity, wound with round copper for just the right amount of treble, formed on heat retardant polyimide for all the power handling you could possibly need. The speakers' hard-felt dust caps smooth out excessive cone distortion, so the low end stays deep and warm and the treble is always clean and precise. Each speaker features a multi-roll surround, which allows for plenty of cone excursion (throw) and gives a satisfying growl when players dig in and play loud.

And for those who want to extend their frequency range for additional high-end spank, the PULSE XL1.10 Supertweeter delivers all the sweet treble players could possibly ask for. The PULSE XL range is now available at your local retailer. See these Celestion bass guitar speakers as well as their range of products at NAMM 2024 in Anaheim, January 25-27, 2024, Booth #6302.
