

Information on the planned “Tonmeistertagung” (tmt31)

Enormous interest and a positive outlook on the upcoming “Tonmeistertagung” (TMT31) in Düsseldorf

The registration phase for the “Tonmeistertagung” is currently going very well. The interest of the companies continues unabated in this traditional event for audio professionals and everyone involved is obviously very pleased that the long (Corona) wait is finally over.

At the end of July 2021, we had already received numerous registrations, all are hoping for a face-to-face event at which an interpersonal exchange from person to person is finally possible again - after an all too long time.

TMT has been opening its doors for over 70 years and is always attractive, up-to-date and with its finger on the pulse

The TMT is known to be an exciting combination of exhibition and specialist congress and that is exactly what makes it so special. All too often nowadays, many trade fair organizers simply attach any training program to existing events in order to supposedly increase the attractiveness.

At TMT, on the other hand, this conception was the core idea of this professional meeting 70 years ago, which is why the visit to the Tonmeistertagung is always characterized by technical discussions and at the same time to discover on site all working tools that are necessary for the best sound reproduction in everyday working life.

High level of lectures

The audio industry values TMT for the level of conference presentations and the opportunity to experience innovative audio formats, as well as the quality of the exhibition. Here at TMT you will find the company's developers at the booth and not just the sales team. At the same time, the TMT is still fondly seen as a “family get-together” for the industry.

With the power of its information, its knowledge transfer and the associated further training, but also with its family cohesion and its topicality, this special event is looking for all interested visitors within the pro-audio business.

The "Education Forum" as a link between students, pro audio companies, qualified experts and further training institutes.

Important educational institutions in the audio business will also present themselves at this year's Tonmeistertagung. There are various technical colleges, universities and other educational institutions of the professional audio industry to be discovered.

The Education Forum is always embedded in the ongoing Tonmeistertagung and thus a platform that has been tried and tested for many years. This proactively promotes the active exchange between students, companies and subject matter experts, all of whom meet and exchange ideas at TMT.

Students present their work

The Education Forum is aimed at three target groups: Educational institutions in the audio sector can present their offers and courses as well as the special achievements of their students here. The students also have the opportunity to make themselves and their work known to an interested specialist audience through poster presentations, lectures or product demonstrations.

Furthermore, the Education Forum offers the professionals of tomorrow the opportunity for interdisciplinary and supraregional exchange with other students. The third target group are the professionals and pro audio companies of today: in the education forum you will find competent partners, customers and colleagues of tomorrow with the universities and students.

As of July 2021, the following educational institutions have registered to participate in tmt31:
