Neo FM provides a superb library of next-generation FM synthesis sounds, covering earth-shattering basses, crystal-clear leads, atmospheric pads, arpeggiated pulsating sounds, and much more. FM Classics provides access to the sounds of the all-time great synths, Yamaha's DX7 and TX81Z, paired with a beautifully crafted and easy-to-use DX-like user interface. Both these instruments are based on Steinberg's acclaimed FM Lab instrument and are available within Cubasis as separate in-app purchases.

"The new HALion-powered instruments in Cubasis add boundless possibilities for musical expression. More than a thousand new presets in the HALion Sonic Selection, and the incredible Neo FM and FM Classics packs, allow you to create professional-sounding productions using just your tablet or phone, as we continue our drive to make Cubasis the best mobile digital audio workstation available," says Cubasis Marketing Manager Lars Slowak.

Dorico for iPad 5.1 includes new HALion-powered General MIDI-compatible sounds for free, and with an optional in-app purchase of a monthly or annual subscription, or a one-off Lifetime Unlock, users can add the sounds of Iconica Sketch, a complete orchestra with 34 different instruments and 140 articulations, optimized for iPad. "Being able to bring the same great-sounding orchestral sounds to Dorico for iPad that users can enjoy in Dorico for macOS and Windows is a huge step forwards," says Dorico Product Marketing Manager Daniel Spreadbury. "These new sounds provide much greater expressive possibilities and will allow composers and arrangers to enjoy writing music on their iPads more than ever."
