At the core of Joe's sound is an array of British-infused rock tones, all represented in a rainbow of tones, reaching far and wide, from early '70s crunch and clean tones to his modern high-gain sounds. The collection features Tone Models based on multiple Marshall amps, including 4 versions of Joe's signature JVM410H amp: stock, C83 Mod, KT88 and 6L6, each with its particular character and feel.

Joe's original 1971 Super Lead and 1969 Plexi are vintage treasures that'll satisfy any rock enthusiast. The '69 Super Lead is an exceptional amp used in the early 1980s with the Squares but was stolen around 1983. It returned nearly 30 years later, in 2012 and Joe wanted to include that incredible-sounding amp in this collection for his fans. Joe hops in a time machine and returns to the 1950s and '60s with Tone Models based on 9 classic Fender amps from his private collection, including an original '53 Tweed Deluxe, which he has owned and used on almost every album since the early '90s.

Joe's layered rhythm guitar tracks often feature a variety of American-style amplifiers. Sparing no expense, he chose 9 of his favorite Fender amplifiers featuring captures based on Fender's Hand-wired series, including a '64 Custom Princeton Reverb, '64 Custom Deluxe Reverb, '68 Custom Deluxe Reverb® and a '57 Deluxe with an Alnico Cream Celestion speaker. Also included are captures of late '60s reissue amps based on a '68 Custom Pro Reverb, '68 Custom Princeton Reverb, '65 Princeton Reverb and a '68 Custom Vibro Champ Reverb. In addition to several bell-like clean captures, many amps were turned up to produce thick, throaty crunch tones perfect for rhythm tracks or as the ideal "edge-of-breakup" platform for your favorite boost and overdrive pedals.

Joe could have stopped at the Fender and Marshall captures, but being the "The Extremist," he wanted to add Tone Models of several amps that have been part of his touring and studio work. He included his trusty Peavey 5150, a staple for almost every album. He brings his SLO-30, Friedman Small Box and newer 5150III models for high-gain fanatics. Joe has been using his Wells amp (only five made) since '91 and includes this rare amp, a blend of VOX, Fender and Marshall-style circuits.

Among the clean tones are captures of Joe's Hiwatt and Roland Jazz Chorus, vital to the artist's album work. From rare one-of-a-kind vintage amps to modern rigs,
