

PAMA to Focus on Roadie Advocacy

As part of its ongoing commitment to sharing perspectives from knowledgeable and respected industry voices, the Professional Audio Manufacturers Alliance (PAMA) is extending an invitation to the audio community to join its November 17 membership meeting with featured guests Courtney and Paul Klimson, founders of The Roadie Clinic.

The Roadie Clinic was launched in 2020 with the mission to empower and heal roadies and their families by providing services and resources tailored to the struggles of touring. PAMA has been a booster of The Roadie Clinic since its inception, and Courtney and Paul will be sharing some of the ways that the organization has grown with support from across the industry, including PAMA.

The free event will be held online at 12 PM EST, November 17, 2022. Registration is required to attend. Registration is available here and is also linked from the PAMA events page. Video archives of past PAMA membership meetings can be found on the event page. Also available on the site are videos of PAMA's student career opportunities series of online sessions.
